

Fulfilled Coffee Company now brewing

By ALEX BARKER
Memorial Co-Editor-in-Chief

“What fulfills you?” That’s the tagline for Fulfilled Coffee Company located on Boulevard near 15th, the newest coffee shop to grace Edmond with its caffeinated presence. For me, it was a wonderful chai latte and for my friend plain coffee. Though the drinks were great, the prices were fairly high (comparable to Starbucks) and my friend was disappointed to learn that a refill on her coffee would cost a dollar. It seemed we were paying extra for the great atmosphere.

I was delighted with the unique look of the place; the exterior is fun and eye-catching while the inside is complete with interesting light features, comfy couches, plenty of table space and even a fireplace. I could easily see myself coming back for a night of studying with friends or some solitary paper writing.

Due to the cold weather, my friend and I skipped the two patios with extra seating off the back and chose a table in the adjoining room. We thoroughly enjoyed our visit.

All the workers were nice and friendly and I even had the chance to speak with the owner for a short time. Although the walls were conspicuously bare, I learned that the shop plans to double as a local art gallery and will soon be displaying art, which is sure to be a conversation starter. The owner also revealed plans for open mic nights and other community events in the future.

Overall, I would recommend Fulfilled for the experience. If you are tired of Starbucks and looking for a similar yet more unique alternative, then this place might just fulfill your needs.

